

SAFETY IN THE WORKPLACE

Is your business prepared for a disaster or emergency? Has your company developed a business continuity plan? If you answered "no" to both of these questions, you've come to the right place. At CRG, we love to see employers take the time to protect both their employees (their greatest asset) and facilities by implementing thorough safety procedures. Not a single business is entirely immune from devastating events, medical emergencies, or disasters. It is highly important to consider all of the possible threats to your workplace and determine how you would properly, safely, and effectively handle each one. Our comprehensive Emergency Action Plans cover a wide variety of common risks to the workplace, including, but not limited to:

- ☑ Fire
- ☑ Earthquake
- ☑ Suspicious Person
- ☑ Suspicious phone call, e-mail, or bomb threat
- ☑ Suspicious Package
- ☑ Medical Emergency
- ☑ Any other specific safety concerns
- ☑ General principles for remaining safe and healthy at work
- ☑ Recommendations for a safe working environment

According to the Institute for Business and Home Safety, approximately 25% of businesses do not reopen their doors after they face a major disaster. Do not be part of that statistic! It is always better to expect the best, but prepare for the worst case scenario. At CRG, we help prepare you for life's unexpected disasters by developing a plan and procedures to help you worry less and focus more on what you do best – your business and its customers. Our highly trained staff tailors your safety procedures to meet the needs of your unique workplace.

In order to build a sustainable safety plan, we meet with your team to discuss your specific goals, needs, and desires. During the consultation, CRG will work with your company to not only develop a proactive Emergency Action Plan, but also evaluate potential hazards in your workplace. We will look at ways to reduce or eliminate existing hazards in your workplace with the goal of creating a safer working environment for all. This may include touring the physical work space or conducting a job hazard analysis. Our final work product will incorporate any recommendations for change into the plan.

If you are interested in stretching above and beyond your Emergency Action plan, we can also assist you in implementing safety rewards programs or conduct safety training. We are committed to the safety of your employees as well as ours. CRG believes safety is a crucial topic that should not be overlooked. We are passionate about helping you prepare for the road ahead.
